

COOKIES

What are cookies

Cookies are small files which store information about users "browsing habits and are sent from websites to users" terminals (computer, tablet etc.)

Cookies allow the user's device to be recognized every time he/she accesses a website. They ensure that the website operates as efficiently as possible, make the user's visit a more valuable experience and supply the website owners with information.

Some cookies are eliminated automatically at the end of the browsing session, while others remain stored on terminals, normally housed in the browser being used (e.g. Internet Explorer, Mozilla Firefox, Google Chrome, etc).

Current legislation on privacy (Italian Leg. Decree No. 196 dated 30 June 2003), recently amended when the Directives 2009/136/EC and 2009/140/EC were implemented, identifies two categories of cookies:

- those for which the website manager only needs to provide an information note;
- those for which an information note is not enough, because the individual user needs to provide their prior consent;

For more information on cookies and privacy you can consult the special leaflet prepared by the Garante della Privacy (Privacy Ombudsman).
